Conversation

From now on, we will begin to insert characters into the conversations. Read/Act out the conversations with your child, taking turns at being each of the characters. If your child is able to read the conversation, you can do it that way. Or you could say your part, then use the words "Naxkumi, ksi." (naxh-koo-mee) = "answer me, please" before the phrase with which you wish him/her to respond. For example, you say "He! Keku hech kteluwensi?" Then say "Naxkumi, ksi in Lenape: 'My name is Red Hawk' ". Your child should then respond, "Nteluwensi Red Hawk." Practice the following conversation:

Whippoorwill: He! Keku hech kteluwensi? = Hello! What is your name?

Red Hawk: Nteluwensi Red Hawk. Keku hech kteluwensi? = My name is Red Hawk. What is your name?

Aptonahanne (Flow of words) Lesson - Explain the following to your child:

Add an "ing", ink or "ng" to the end of a word to mean "at", "to" or "in" that place. Generally add "ng" if the word ends in a vowel, and "ing" or "ink" if the word ends in a consonant.

Teken + "ing" = Tekening "at, to, in the woods"

Sipu + "ng" = sipung "at, to, in the river"

Above, we learned the word "atam" = "Let's go!"

So, to say, "Let's go to the woods!" You would say "Tekening atam!".

"Sipung atam!" means "Let's go to the river!"

The word "wendaxa" is used to say to someone, "come here!", but it is also used to say "come on!" If you are speaking specifically to a child you would use the word "nuwi!" (noo-wee).

The word "ikalial" is used to tell someone to "go away" but is also used to mean "Let's get out of here!"

The word "chitkwesi" means "be quiet" or "shut up". A less emphatic or more gentle word you might use is "sa" (sah) which means "hush"

We have now learned three words which basically mean "yes":

Use "e-e" in answer to a direct question, such as, "Do you want something?"

Use "ahikta" when you are agreeing with someone, such as, "It is a nice day."

Use "yuh" or "yuho" to mean "okay".

The word, "Tani" means "where". "hech" marks a question. "kta" means "you go"

Put them together, "Tani hech kta?" and the phrase means "Where are you going?"

For best results, follow the weekly plan day by day. It is good for the child to get into the routine. It is important to use these words in your daily life as much as possible.
